Śrī Vedavyāsa and Sarasvatī Pūjā

English instructions, Roman IAST mantras, and English meanings

Complete translation of the six-page booklet supplied by the user. Original page numbers appear with each section so that you can compare the translation with the source.

Reading this translation

Action translates the Kannada or procedural instruction. IAST gives the Sanskrit in Roman script. Meaning gives its English sense. The meanings are readable translations, not a word-by-word grammatical edition.

The source has several apparent typographical errors and some compressed, grammatically uneven passages. These are identified where they affect reading or meaning. Straightforward word spacing and punctuation have been regularized. Suggested repairs are explicitly identified; uncertain passages are not presented as established Sanskrit. Vedic pitch accents are not supplied by this booklet and are not reconstructed here.

The booklet follows a Madhva understanding of worship: Hari is the indwelling Lord of the other deities. Its statements about divine forms and the order of meditation are translated within that framework.

IAST key: ā, ī, ū are long vowels; ṛ is a vocalic r; ś and ṣ are two Sanskrit “sh” sounds; ṭ, ḍ, ṇ are retroflex sounds; ṃ marks anusvāra; ḥ marks visarga. Bīja syllables such as hāṃ, daṃ, rāṃ, klīṃ, bhāṃ, vyāṃ, śrīṃ, hrīṃ and duṃ are sacred seed syllables and are transliterated rather than assigned a literal English meaning.

1. Preparation and initial remembrance

Original page 1

Action: Gather turmeric, kumkum, flowers, consecrated unbroken rice (mantrākṣata), a pañcapātra (ritual water vessel), an uddharaṇe (ritual spoon), and all the sacred books. Arrange the books neatly in order.

Perform ācamana, the ritual sipping of water, and contemplate the divine names beginning with Keśava. The booklet gives only a fragment of the name sequence:

IAST

govindāya namaḥ | viṣṇave namaḥ | … | śrīkṛṣṇāya namaḥ |

Meaning: Salutations to Govinda; salutations to Viṣṇu; … salutations to Śrī Kṛṣṇa.

Source limit: The intervening names and the complete ācamana procedure are not printed in this booklet.

2. Resolve for invocation: āvāhana-saṅkalpa

Original page 1

Action: State the ritual resolve, inserting the applicable calendar details. The printed formula is abbreviated:

IAST

> praṇavasya … saṃvatsare, dakṣiṇāyaṇe, śaradṛtau, āśvīja-māse, mūlā-nakṣatre, ___ yoge, ___ karaṇe, ___ vāre, sarasvatī/vedavyāsāṃ āvāhayāmi |

Meaning: In the year …, during the southern course of the sun, in the autumn season, in the month of Āśvīja (Āśvayuja), under Mūlā nakṣatra, with the yoga …, karaṇa … and weekday …, I invoke Sarasvatī/Vedavyāsa.

Text note: The initial “praṇavasya …” is an incomplete opening, not a complete sentence. The final “sarasvatī/vedavyāsāṃ” is the booklet’s shorthand and is grammatically irregular. The separate invocations later in the booklet give sarasvatīm āvāhayāmi and vedavyāsam āvāhayāmi. Do not treat the ellipsis as a reconstructed full saṅkalpa.

3. What to contemplate during invocation

Original page 1; attributed in the booklet to the teaching of Śrī Devendra Tīrtha

Action and understanding: The books placed for worship are not themselves Vedavyāsa or Sarasvatī. Śrī Vedavyāsa is present in those sacred texts, accompanied by his consorts Caturkaparda and Ambhṛṇī, whom the booklet identifies as direct forms of Lakṣmī. Brahmā, Vāyu, Rudra and the other deities worship him.

Pray that Vedavyāsa grants knowledge, devotion and detachment, and an interest in studying the works of Śrīmad Ācārya (Madhvācārya).

At invocation, remember Hayagrīva, the embodiment of knowledge; the ten avatāras of the Supreme Lord; Durgā; Mukhyaprāṇa; Sarasvatī and Bhāratī; Śeṣa and Garuḍa with their consorts; and Ācārya Madhva. Offer mantrākṣata while remembering them.

4. Arrangement and sequence of invocation

Original page 1

Action: Place the Vedas, commentaries (bhāṣyas), Sarvamūla works, śāstras and other sacred books on a pedestal. Cover them with a silk cloth. Make the resolve:

IAST

> śrī vedavyāsa-preraṇayā, pustakeṣu sannihita-sarasvatyātmaka-śrī-vyāsa-paraśurāma-pūjāṃ kariṣye |

Meaning: Inspired by Śrī Vedavyāsa, I shall perform the worship of Śrī Vyāsa and Paraśurāma in the form associated with Sarasvatī, present in these books.

Interpretive note: “Sarasvatyātmaka” is compressed ritual language. Read it together with the booklet’s later description of the indwelling Lord; it does not state that the physical books are themselves the deities.

Invoke Sarasvatī. In the luminous forms of the invoked deities, meditate upon Mukhyaprāṇa; within Mukhyaprāṇa, meditate upon Śrī Vedavyāsa. Invoke Hayagrīva, Dattātreya, Paraśurāma, Mahidāsa and Aitareya with the mantras given below. Perform worship of the pedestal (pīṭha-pūjā) as part of the invocation.

Source limit: Although Mahidāsa and Aitareya are mentioned here, no separate invocation verses for them are printed in this booklet.

5. Invocation of Śrī Hayagrīva

Original page 1

IAST

vande turaṅgavadanaṃ śaśibimbasaṃsthaṃ
candrāvadātam amṛtātmakaraiḥ samantāt |
aṇḍāntaraṃ bahir api pratibhāsayantaṃ
śaṅkhākṣapustaka-subodhayutābjabāhum |
nasto mukhād api nirantaram udgirantaṃ
vidyā aśeṣata utābjabhaveśamukhyaiḥ |
saṃsevyamānam atibhaktibharābhinamraiḥ
lakṣmyāmṛtena satataṃ pariṣicyamānam |
oṃ hāṃ hayagrīvāya namaḥ |
oṃ hayagrīvam āvāhayāmi |

Meaning: I bow to the horse-faced Lord, seated in the lunar disc, pure and white like the moon. His nectar-filled rays illuminate the universe within and without. His lotus-like hands bear a conch, a rosary, a book and the gesture of clear understanding. From his nose and mouth he continually pours forth all knowledge. Brahmā, Śiva and the other leading deities serve him, bowing deeply with abundant devotion. Lakṣmī continually bathes him with nectar. Oṃ, hāṃ: salutations to Hayagrīva. Oṃ: I invoke Hayagrīva.

Text note: The booklet reads amṛtātmakaraiḥ and abhinamraiḥ. A parallel Tantrasārasaṅgraha text reads amitātmakaraiḥ (“with immeasurable rays”) and avanamraiḥ (“bowed down”). The booklet’s readings are retained above.

6. Meditation on Śrī Kapila and Dattātreya

Original page 2

IAST

prodyaddivākara-samānatanuṃ sahasra-
sūryorudīdhitibhir āpta-samastalokam |
jñānābhayāṅkitakaraṃ kapilaṃ ca dattaṃ
dhyāyed ajādisamitiṃ pratibodhayantam |
oṃ kapilāya namaḥ | kapilam āvāhayāmi |
oṃ daṃ dattātreyāya namaḥ | dattātreyam āvāhayāmi |

Meaning: Meditate upon Kapila and Datta, whose forms resemble the rising sun, whose vast radiance, like that of a thousand suns, reaches all worlds. Their hands display the gestures of knowledge and fearlessness. They awaken understanding in the assembly headed by Brahmā. Oṃ: salutations to Kapila; I invoke Kapila. Oṃ, daṃ: salutations to Dattātreya; I invoke Dattātreya.

7. Invocation of Śrī Rāma

Original page 2

IAST - with two suggested textual repairs noted below

śyāmaṃ ravīndvamita-dīdhitikāntiyuktaṃ
jñānaṃ śaraṃ ca dadhataṃ priyayā sametam |
svātmasvarūpam amitaṃ hanumanmukheṣu
sandarśayantam ajitaṃ smaratorugīrbhiḥ |
oṃ rāṃ rāmāya namaḥ |
oṃ rāmam āvāhayāmi |

Meaning: Remember the dark-hued, unconquered Rāma with exalted words of praise. His brilliance is immeasurable, like the light of the sun and moon. He displays the sign of knowledge and holds an arrow, accompanied by his beloved. He reveals his limitless, true nature to Hanumān and the other leading devotees. Oṃ, rāṃ: salutations to Rāma. Oṃ: I invoke Rāma.

Text note: The booklet prints ravīndramita and smaratorugobhīḥ, both difficult readings. The parallel Tantrasārasaṅgraha verse supports ravīndvamita and smaratorugīrbhiḥ; these are the readings used above. “Jñānaṃ” is understood contextually as the knowledge gesture.

8. Invocation of Śrī Kṛṣṇa

Original page 2

IAST

dhyāyed dhariṃ maṇinibhaṃ jagadekavandyaṃ
saundaryasāram ariśaṅkhavarābhayāni |
dorbhir dadhānam ajitaṃ sarasaṃ ca bhaiṣmī-
satyāsametaṃ nikhilapradam indireśam |
oṃ klīṃ kṛṣṇāya namaḥ |
oṃ śrī kṛṣṇam āvāhayāmi |

Meaning: Meditate upon Hari, radiant like a jewel, the one revered by the whole world and the essence of beauty. His hands hold the discus and conch and show the gestures of granting blessings and fearlessness. Unconquered and gracious, he is accompanied by Bhaiṣmī (Rukmiṇī, daughter of Bhīṣmaka) and Satyā (Satyabhāmā). He grants all things and is the Lord of Indirā (Lakṣmī). Oṃ, klīṃ: salutations to Kṛṣṇa. Oṃ: I invoke Śrī Kṛṣṇa.

9. Invocation of Paraśurāma

Original page 2

IAST

aṅgāravarṇam abhito 'ṇḍabahiḥ prabhābhiḥ
vyāptaṃ paraśvadhadhanurdharam ekavīram |
dhyāyed ajeśapuruhūtamukhyaiḥ stuvadbhiḥ
āvītam ātmapadavīṃ pratipādayantam |
oṃ bhāṃ bhārgavāya namaḥ |
oṃ bhārgavarāmam āvāhayāmi |

Meaning: Meditate upon the uniquely heroic Lord, glowing like burning embers, whose radiance spreads beyond the cosmic sphere. He bears an axe and a bow. He is surrounded by Brahmā, Śiva, Indra and the other leading deities praising him, and he teaches the way to his own divine state. Oṃ, bhāṃ: salutations to Bhārgava, the descendant of Bhṛgu. Oṃ: I invoke Bhārgava Rāma, Paraśurāma.

10. Meditation for invocation of Nṛsiṃha

Original page 2

IAST - minor repairs noted below

dhyāyen nṛsiṃham uruvṛttaravitrinetraṃ
jānuprasaktakarayugmam athāparābhyām |
cakraṃ daraṃ ca dadhataṃ priyayā sametaṃ
tigmāṃśukoṭyadhikatejasam agryaśaktim |

Meaning: Meditate upon Nṛsiṃha, whose three large, round eyes shine like suns. One pair of hands rests upon his knees, while the other two hold the discus and conch. He is accompanied by his beloved. His brilliance exceeds that of ten million suns, and his power is supreme.

Text note: The booklet's athāparābhyaṃ has been regularized to athāparābhyām, and agraśaktiṃ to agryaśaktim, following the parallel verse. Unlike the neighboring sections, the booklet gives no separate "oṃ … āvāhayāmi" formula here.

11. Invocation of Vedavyāsa

Original pages 2-3

IAST

vijñānarociḥ-paripūritāntaḥ-
bāhyāṇḍakośaṃ haritopalābham |
tarkābhayetaṃ vidhiśarvapūrva-
gīrvāṇavijñānadam ānato 'smi |

Meaning: I bow to him whose radiance of knowledge fills the cosmic sphere inside and out; whose appearance is like a green jewel; who displays the gestures of reasoning and fearlessness; and who gives true knowledge to the deities headed by Brahmā and Śiva.

Action: Offer mantrākṣata.

Vedavyāsa Gāyatrī

IAST - first printed occurrence

oṃ pūrṇaprajñānāya vidmahe pūrṇānandāya dhīmahi |
tan no vyāsaḥ pracodayāt |
oṃ vyāṃ vedavyāsāya namaḥ |
vedavyāsam āvāhayāmi |

Meaning: Oṃ. May we know him who possesses complete knowledge. We meditate upon him who is complete bliss. May that Vyāsa inspire and guide us. Oṃ, vyāṃ: salutations to Vedavyāsa. I invoke Vedavyāsa.

Text note: The booklet prints pūrṇaprajñānāya in this first occurrence and pūrṇajñānāya in the following repetition. Both are recorded rather than silently merged.

12. Repeated Gāyatrī and meditation on Śrī (Lakṣmī)

Original page 3

IAST - second printed occurrence

oṃ pūrṇajñānāya vidmahe pūrṇānandāya dhīmahi |
tan no vyāsaḥ pracodayāt |
oṃ vyāṃ vedavyāsāya namaḥ |
vedavyāsam āvāhayāmi |

Meaning: Oṃ. May we know him who is complete knowledge. We meditate upon him who is complete bliss. May Vyāsa inspire and guide us. Oṃ, vyāṃ: salutations to Vedavyāsa. I invoke Vedavyāsa.

IAST - invocation as printed, with spacing regularized

oṃ kauśeyapītavasanāṃ |
oṃ lakṣmai namaḥ | lakṣmīm āvāhayāmi |
oṃ śrīṃ | oṃ śriyam āvāhayāmi |

Meaning: Oṃ: [she who is] clothed in yellow silk. Oṃ: salutations to Lakṣmī; I invoke Lakṣmī. Oṃ, śrīṃ: Oṃ, I invoke Śrī.

Text note: The opening phrase is a fragment, and lakṣmai namaḥ is irregular as printed. The grammatical form for “salutations to Lakṣmī” is lakṣmyai namaḥ.

IAST - meditation verse

oṃ kauśeyapītavasanām aravindanetrāṃ
tāmbūlanīlakusumābhaya-sadvaretām |
śyāmāṅkakāntisahitāṃ paramāṅkasaṃsthāṃ
dhyāyed vidhīśanutapādayugāṃ janitrīm |

Meaning: Meditate upon the divine Mother, dressed in yellow silk, with lotus-like eyes. She holds betel and a blue flower and displays the gestures of fearlessness and auspicious blessing. She is seated in the lap of the Supreme Lord, associated with the beauty of his dark form. Brahmā and Śiva praise her two feet.

Text note: The printed compound śyāmāṅkakāntisahitām is unusual. The English gives its likely contextual sense; it is not offered as a certain grammatical resolution.

13. Extended invocation of the indwelling Lord and the associated deities

Original pages 3-4

This is one long ritual address. The IAST below preserves its sequence, with clearer punctuation and minimal grammatical regularization. Several names and compounds are unevenly printed. The English therefore gives the intended ritual sense rather than claiming a literal, fully resolved syntax.

IAST - invocation of the indwelling Vyāsa

etat sacchāstra-pustaka-lipirekhānta-tejomayarekhāntaḥ-prāṇarekhāyāṃ sthitaṃ dharmanārāyaṇa-mahidāsa-kapila-dattātreya-hayagrīva-nārasiṃha-rāma-kṛṣṇa-paraśurāma-vyāsa-hari-prājña-puruṣātmaka-sarvadevābhimānisarvavidyādraṣṭṛ-śrī-brahmāṇī-bhāratyantargataṃ
strīrūpaṃ vyāsaṃ saṃmukhīkaromi |

Meaning: Within the luminous lines of the writing in this sacred book, in the line associated with Prāṇa, I bring into my presence Vyāsa in a feminine form, indwelling Śrī Brahmāṇī (Sarasvatī) and Bhāratī, who are associated with the vision of all knowledge. The address associates the indwelling Lord with the forms Dharmanārāyaṇa, Mahidāsa, Kapila, Dattātreya, Hayagrīva, Nārasiṃha, Rāma, Kṛṣṇa, Paraśurāma, Vyāsa, Hari, Prājña and Puruṣa, and with lordship over all the deities.

Text note: “Prāṇarekhā” and the nested “lipirekhā/tejomayarekhā” expressions refer to the booklet’s visualization of presence within written sacred texts; their technical detail is not explained in the source. The source prints bhāratyantargata without a clear final case ending; -antargatam is a grammatical regularization above. “Strīrūpaṃ vyāsaṃ” (“Vyāsa in a feminine form”) is explicitly present in the source and has not been removed.

IAST - associated divine forms, sages and teachers

tatsannidhāne śrī-bhū-durgāmbhṛṇīṃ, hrīṃ māyājayā-kṛtī-śāntī-lakṣmī-jayantī-jānakīsatyā-rukmiṇī, svayaṃ prītyākhya-vyāsa-bhāryātmikāṃ ramāṃ, brahmaprāṇa-śrīmadhanumadbhīmamadhvān,
sarasvatībhāratyau, śeṣa-rudra-pārvatī-vināyakān,
bādariṃ, jaiminiṃ, sumantuṃ, vaiśaṃpāyanaṃ,
āśmarathyaṃ, pailaṃ, kāśakṛtsnaṃ, lomaśaṃ,
etān vyāsaśiṣyān |
guṅgūṃ, sinīvālīṃ, rākāṃ, sarasvatīṃ,
indrāṇīṃ, varuṇānīṃ ca etāḥ sūktadevatāḥ |
śrīmadānandatīrtha-jayatīrtha-vyāsatīrthādīn,
bhāṣya-ṭīkā-ṭippaṇī-kartṝn āvāhayāmi |
kṛpayā saṃmukhībhavantu bhavantaḥ |

Meaning: In that divine presence I invoke Ramā (Lakṣmī), described through the forms Śrī, Bhū, Durgā, Ambhṛṇī, Māyā, Jayā, Kṛtī, Śāntī, Lakṣmī, Jayantī, Jānakī, Satyā and Rukmiṇī, and as Prīti, the consort of Vyāsa. I invoke Brahmā and Prāṇa; Śrī Hanumān, Bhīma and Madhva; Sarasvatī and Bhāratī; Śeṣa, Rudra, Pārvatī and Vināyaka.

I invoke these disciples of Vyāsa: Bādari, Jaimini, Sumantu, Vaiśaṃpāyana, Āśmarathya, Paila, Kāśakṛtsna and Lomaśa. I invoke these deities of the hymns: Guṅgū, Sinīvālī, Rākā, Sarasvatī, Indrāṇī and Varuṇānī. I invoke Śrīmad Ānandatīrtha, Jayatīrtha, Vyāsatīrtha and the other authors of bhāṣyas, ṭīkās and explanatory notes. Revered ones, please graciously turn toward me and be present.

Text note: The source's list uses some nonstandard case endings, including jaiminīṃ and indrāṇīṃm; the clear name forms are regularized above. The forms kṛtī and śāntī follow the printed long vowels. The source's compound linking Brahmā, Prāṇa and Hanumān-Bhīma-Madhva is interpreted according to its accompanying Madhva instructions.

Action: Pray in this way and offer flowers held together in the hands (puṣpāñjali).

14. Establishing the presence: "gṛhā vai pratiṣṭhā" passage

Original page 4

The booklet labels this passage "gṛhā vai pratiṣṭhā-sūkta." Its text is unevenly printed; the following is a close transliteration rather than a verified reconstruction of a Vedic edition.

IAST - source reading

tatpratiṣṭhitatamayā vācā śaṃstavyaṃ, tasmād yady api dūra iva paśūn labhate,
gṛhān evai nānā jigamiṣati,
gṛhā hi paśūnāṃ pratiṣṭhā pratiṣṭhā uttamā pratiṣṭhā |

Meaning - approximate: It is to be praised with speech that is most firmly established. Therefore, even when one acquires cattle at a distance, one wishes to bring them home. The home is the foundation of the cattle: a firm foundation, the highest foundation.

Text note: The words gṛhān evai nānā do not give a secure grammatical reading. “Wishes to bring them home” expresses the likely sense of the surrounding passage, not a word-for-word certainty. The introductory label means “Homes are indeed the foundation.”

15. Invocation of Durgā

Original page 4

IAST

oṃ kauśeyaraktavasanāṃ kamalatrinetrāṃ |
cakrābjatarjana-suśūlayutābjahastām |
udyacchatārkasadṛśīṃ paramāṅkasaṃsthāṃ |
dhyāyed vidhīśanutapādayugāṃ janitrīm |
oṃ duṃ durgāyai namaḥ | durgām āvāhayāmi |

Meaning: Meditate upon the Mother, clothed in red silk, with three lotus-like eyes. Her lotus-like hands bear the discus, lotus and fine trident and display the admonishing gesture. She shines like a hundred rising suns and is seated in the lap of the Supreme Lord. Brahmā and Śiva praise her feet. Oṃ, duṃ: salutations to Durgā; I invoke Durgā.

16. Invocation of Prāṇa (Mukhyaprāṇa)

Original page 4

IAST

udyadraviprakara-sannibham acyutāṅke
svāsīnam asya nutinutyavacaḥpravṛttim |
dhyāyed gadābhayakaraṃ sukṛtāñjaliṃ taṃ |
prāṇaṃ yatheṣṭatanum unnatakarmaśaktim |
oṃ prāṇāya namaḥ | prāṇam āvāhayāmi |

Meaning: Meditate upon Prāṇa, radiant like a multitude of rising suns, seated in Acyuta’s lap and devoted to speaking his praise. He bears the mace and the gesture of fearlessness and offers reverent añjali. He can assume a form according to his will and possesses exalted power of action. Oṃ: salutations to Prāṇa; I invoke Prāṇa.

Text note: The booklet’s nutinutyavacaḥpravṛttim is uncertain; the intended reference to praising Acyuta is clear from the context. Its final formula prints prāṇām āvāhayāmi; the grammatical prāṇam is used above. The verse’s multiple hand descriptions are retained without imposing a particular number of hands.

17. Meditation on Sarasvatī

Original page 4

IAST - grammatical repairs identified below

udyaddivākara-samūhanibhāṃ
svabhartur aṅkasthitām abhaya-sadvarabāhuyugmām |
mudrāṃ ca tattvadṛśaye varapustakaṃ ca |
doryugmakena dadhatīṃ smaratātmasaṃsthām |
oṃ sarasvatyai namaḥ | sarasvatīm āvāhayāmi |

Meaning: Remember Sarasvatī, radiant like a multitude of rising suns and seated upon her husband's lap. One pair of hands displays fearlessness and auspicious blessing; another bears a gesture for perceiving truth and an excellent book. Contemplate her inwardly. Oṃ: salutations to Sarasvatī; I invoke Sarasvatī.

Text note: The booklet has aṅkasthim and mābhaya; these have been joined and regularized as aṅkasthitām abhaya. The source's final ātmasaṃsthām ("present within oneself") is retained. The parallel Tantrasārasaṅgraha verse instead ends ātmavidyām ("knowledge of the self").

18. Meditation on Bhāratī

Original page 4

IAST

bhāratīṃ sarvavedāḍhyāṃ bhartur aṅkasthitāṃ satīm |
dhyāyantīṃ satataṃ viṣṇuṃ dhyāyet sarvārthasiddhaye |
oṃ bhāratyai namaḥ | bhāratīm āvāhayāmi |

Meaning: For the accomplishment of all worthy aims, meditate upon the virtuous Bhāratī, endowed with all the Vedas, seated upon her husband's lap and constantly meditating upon Viṣṇu. Oṃ: salutations to Bhāratī; I invoke Bhāratī.

Text note: The booklet's forms corresponding to bhartur and dhyāyantīṃ have been grammatically regularized.

19. Timing and offerings at invocation

Original page 5

Action: Invoke all the presiding deities of the sacred books in this manner. Offer mantrākṣata and water.

Perform the invocation on Āśvayuja śukla-saptamī, when Mūlā nakṣatra is present. If Mūlā does not occur on saptamī, perform the invocation on the day when Mūlā occurs.

Meaning of the calendar terms: Āśvayuja is the lunar month named in the booklet; śukla is the bright fortnight; saptamī is its seventh lunar day; Mūlā is the relevant lunar mansion. This translates the booklet’s timing instruction and does not calculate dates for a particular year.

20. Prayer that the Lord remain present

Original page 5

IAST

sānnidhyaṃ kuru deveśa sarvasampatkaro bhava |
vibho sakalalokeśa viṣṇo jiṣṇo hare prabho |
tvāṃ bhaktyā pūjayāmy adya bhogair arghyādibhiḥ kramāt |
pūjāvasānaparyantam atra sthitvā janārdana |
bhaktasya mama pūjāṃ tvaṃ gṛhītvā pāhi māṃ prabho |
bho svāmin jagatāṃ nātha yāvat pūjāvasānakam |
tāvat saṃprītibhāvena bimbe sannihito bhava ||

Meaning: O Lord of the deities, make your presence here and grant every blessing. O all-pervading Lord of all worlds, Viṣṇu, victorious Hari, my Lord: today I worship you with devotion, offering arghya and the other offerings in their proper order. O Janārdana, remain here until the worship is complete. Accept the worship of me, your devotee, and protect me. O Master, Lord of the worlds, remain graciously present in this representation until the worship ends.

Action: Pray in this way with the prayer mudrā. The booklet names the mudrā but does not describe its exact hand position.

21. Establishment formulas and repeated prayer

Original page 5

IAST

supratiṣṭhitam astu oṃ |
āvāhito bhava | sthāpito bhava |
sannihito bhava | sanniruddho bhava |
prasīda prasīda |

Meaning: May the presence be firmly established. Oṃ. Be invoked; be established; be present; remain here in this invoked presence. Be gracious, be gracious.

IAST - repeated prayer, with grammatical corrections noted below

sānnidhyaṃ kuru deveśa sarvasampatkaro bhava |
vibho sakalalokeśa viṣṇo jiṣṇo hare prabho |
yāgāvasānaparyantam atra sthitvā janārdana |
bhaktasya mama pūjāṃ tvaṃ gṛhītvā pāhi māṃ prabho |
oṃ namo nārāyaṇāya oṃ |
oṃ vedavyāsāya namaḥ | dhyāyāmi |

Meaning: O Lord of the deities, be present and grant every blessing. O all-pervading Lord of all worlds, Viṣṇu, victorious Hari, my Lord: remain here until the rite is complete, O Janārdana. Accept my worship and protect me. Oṃ: salutations to Nārāyaṇa. Oṃ. Oṃ: salutations to Vedavyāsa. I meditate upon him.

Text note: In this repetition the booklet prints irregular vocatives prabhoḥ, janārdhanaḥ, and mā where the earlier prayer has clear corresponding forms. Prabho, janārdana and māṃ are used above.

Action: Perform the invocation and the related acts in this manner.

22. Food offerings and hymn recitation

Original page 5

Action: After the principal food offering (naivedya), make the food offering to Ramādevī and the other associated deities. Offer sandalwood paste and the other offerings to Vyāsa’s disciples and the others.

Recite the Ambhṛṇī Sūkta, Manyu Sūkta, Sarasvatī Sūkta, Rātrī Sūkta and other appropriate hymns.

Source limit: These hymns are named but their verses are not printed in this PDF. Their full text and translations are therefore not part of this translation. The booklet spells the first title Ambhṛṇī; it refers to the hymn associated with Vāc Āmbhṛṇī.

23. Worship on the following days

Original page 6

Action: After invocation under Mūlā nakṣatra, continue worship on the following days, under Pūrvāṣāḍhā and Uttarāṣāḍhā, and also on the day of Śravaṇa. Offer turmeric, kumkum and fragrant flowers, and present naivedya.

IAST - dedication of the worship

anena śrī-sarasvatyātmaka-vyāsaparaśurāma-pūjanena bhagavān bhāratīramaṇa-mukhyaprāṇāntargata-
śrī-vyāsaparaśurāmaḥ prīyatām |

Meaning: Through this worship of Śrī Vyāsa and Paraśurāma in the form associated with Sarasvatī, may the blessed Lord Śrī Vyāsa-Paraśurāma, indwelling Mukhyaprāṇa, the consort of Bhāratī, be pleased.

Action: Worship Vedavyāsa/Sarasvatī in this way for three days, from saptamī through navamī. Each day, offer naivedya, sandalwood paste and the other offerings, and recite the hymns mentioned above. Invocation is to be performed under Mūlā nakṣatra.

Timing note: The booklet gives both the lunar-day description (saptamī through navamī) and the nakṣatra sequence, including worship on Śravaṇa before dismissal. They are both retained here; the calendar alignment is not resolved by the booklet itself.

24. Dismissal: visarjana

Original page 6

Action: Perform dismissal during the early part of the day when Śravaṇa nakṣatra is present.

IAST

uttiṣṭha brahmaṇaspate devayantas tvemahe |
upa pra yantu marutaḥ sudānava
indra prāśūr bhavā sacā |
yathāsthānam udvāsayāmi |

Meaning: Arise, O Brahmaṇaspati; we who seek the divine call upon you. May the generous Maruts come forward. O Indra, be swift and be with us. I respectfully dismiss the invoked presence to its proper abode.

Text note: The Vedic verse is Ṛgveda 1.40.1. Devayantas tvemahe represents the joined words devayantaḥ tvā īmahe (“we, desiring the divine, invoke you”). The booklet writes marutas sudānava; the standard saṃhitā reading marutaḥ sudānava is used above. IAST here does not reproduce Vedic pitch accents.

Action: Perform dismissal with this mantra, gently moving the book to mark the completion of the invocation.

On the day of dismissal, recite the mantra beginning “yasya smṛtyā ca,” chant the three-name mantra (nāmatraya-mantra), and dedicate the worship to Kṛṣṇa (Kṛṣṇārpaṇa).

IAST - only the reference words actually given in the booklet

yasya smṛtyā ca … |
kṛṣṇārpaṇa … |

Meaning: “By remembering whom, and …”; “[an] offering/dedication to Kṛṣṇa.”

Source limit: The complete “yasya smṛtyā ca” verse, the words of the nāmatraya-mantra, and a full Kṛṣṇārpaṇa formula are not printed. They have not been silently supplied from another prayer book.

25. Study during the worship period

Original page 6

Instruction: After invoking Sarasvatī and Vedavyāsa, do not use the consecrated books for new study. The four-day period from Mūlā through Śravaṇa is an anadhyayana period, a pause in beginning new lessons.

Do not study a new lesson during this period. You may reflect upon lessons already learned and may perform pārāyaṇa, devotional or customary recitation.

Source and editorial references

Primary source: The six-page PDF supplied by the user, “vedavyasa-saraswathi-pooja-sanskrit.pdf,” at:

https://krishnamuttkondapur.weebly.com/uploads/1/9/7/6/1976276/vedavyasa-saraswathi-pooja-sanskrit.pdf

All procedural translations and the base mantra readings above come from that supplied PDF. Items named but not printed in it are explicitly identified.

Limited comparison for apparent printing errors: Madhvācārya, Tantrasārasaṅgraha, chapter 4, especially verses 15, 36, 50-51 and 72, online text at:

https://anandamakaranda.in/Tantrasarasangraha

Comparison for the dismissal verse: Ṛgveda 1.40.1, text and padapāṭha at:

Ṛgveda 1.40.1 - Sanskrit text and padapāṭha

This translation preserves the booklet’s scope. It is not an expanded pūjā manual: it does not invent omitted offerings, hymns, calendar details or hand gestures.